

NATIONAL ORGANIC WEEK

2019 SPONSORSHIP KIT

WHAT IS NATIONAL ORGANIC WEEK (NOW)?

National Organic Week (NOW) is the largest annual celebration of organic food, products and systems hosted exclusively in Australia by the Centre for Organic Research & Education (CORE) to raise awareness about its benefits and positive impact on environmental, social and economic sustainability. CORE also has plans to expand the NOW program to China and Singapore in the near future.

Investing in the annual National Organic Week is an investment in the future of sustainability.

Your involvement in NOW reinforces your organisation's commitment to sustainability and enhances your corporate status with your customers and the wider community.

WHY SPONSOR?

Be known as a Socially Responsible Business

Your organisation's association with NOW will showcase your dedication to a sustainable environment and future in the community, thus raising your company's corporate profile, improving your company's culture and generating significant community goodwill.

Brand recognition and promotion

Your investment will result in brand presence and mentions through the NOW website, email campaigns, event calendar, social media, product placement opportunities and event signage.

Exposure to potential customers

NOW has established a reputation in the past 13 years across Australia for supporting and promoting sustainability, organic products and sustainable agriculture systems. We have a targeted base of supporters who choose to use eco-friendly and organic products, they want products that are made/produced in a sustainable manner.

Great networking opportunities

NOW events bring together organic product & service providers and community, government and industry interest groups. Each event will provide valuable opportunities to further your business ventures and discover potential business partners.

About the Centre for Organic Research & Education (CORE)

The Centre for Organic Research and Education (CORE) is a charitable not-for-profit organisation conducting year round sustainability research, education and awareness activities. This work helps to promote the organic cycle, particularly organic recycling, food production and organic products and systems. Highlights during the 12 month program include National Organic Week (NOW) and International Compost Awareness Week Australia (ICAW).

The CORE network is substantial. The CORE team works with industry and government partners and connects thousands of CORE Members. Over the years, shared agendas have included climate change abatement, organic practices, food waste avoidance and composting. CORE programs have served to promote products made from recovered and recycled resources. They have helped open up new markets, from treating run-off from wrecking yards and city streets to helping farmers reduce chemical input, save water and increase yields.
